Faculty Development Resources

Articles

Ja’afar, R. (2012). Two decades of championing faculty development: Is it worth the effort? (Doctoral dissertation, Department of Medical Education, School of Medical Sciences, Universiti Sains Malaysia, Malaysia).

Websites

E-Learning Modules: This series of open access short modules covers core topics in clinical teaching and learning. They have been developed by the Multi-professional Faculty Development Team to inform and support the professional development of clinical teachers.
http://www.faculty.londondeanery.ac.uk/e-learning

Center for Faculty Development: The CFD has created the Accessible Resource for Teaching online learning tool to provide additional ways for individuals and groups to participate in faculty development.
https://cfd.utoronto.ca/art

iTEACH in Medical Education: Virginia Commonwealth University School of Medicine.
http://wp.vcu.edu/iteach/

Faculty Development for Medical Educators (FD4ME): an on-line faculty development and continuing education program for busy health professions educators who share a commitment to teamwork, innovation, excellence and leadership. https://fd4me.osu.edu/

Faculty Vitae: Faculty Vitae is a professional development resource for faculty at medical schools and teaching hospitals. https://www.aamc.org/members/gfa/faculty_vitae/

Preceptor Education Program: The University of Western Ontario’s on-line faculty development course containing eight different modules covering basic teaching topics. http://www.preceptor.ca/index.html

Preceptor Development Program: A series of seven detailed modules covering basic teaching topics produced by the University of Virginia Faculty Development Office.
http://www.med-ed.virginia.edu/courses/fm/precept/